

But the Court held that the taxi service was not a constituent part of the interstate movement of the passengers, i.e. the taxis were not themselves instrumentalities of interstate commerce. The relationship was "casual and incidental" ~~at present~~ being "just another local fare" to the driver. The Court took pains to point out that it was not deciding that some activities of local taxi drivers might fall within federal power, citing as an example an agreement to eliminate transportation brand from stations where interstate ~~to~~ ~~the~~ ~~Court~~ ~~never~~ ~~held~~ ~~that~~ ~~the~~ ~~taxi~~ ~~taxi~~ ~~business~~ ~~was~~ ~~not~~ ~~subject~~ ~~to~~ ~~federal~~ ~~regulation~~. In fact in Supervisors of Washington v.
