ARTICLE FIRST.

BILL OF RIGHTS.

That the general, great and essential principles of Liberty and Free Government may be recognized and established, we declare that—

Section 1. All political power is inherent in the people, and all free governments are founded on their authority, and instituted for their benefit; and they have, at all times, the unalienable right to alter, reform, or abolish their form of government, in such manner as they may think expedient.

Sec. 2. All freemen, when they form a social compact, have equal rights; and no man, or set of men, is entitled to exclusive, separate, public emoluments or privileges, but in consideration of public services.
SEC. 3. No religious test shall ever be required, as a qualification to any office or public trust in this State.

SEC. 4. All men have a natural and indefeasible right to worship God according to the dictates of their own consciences: no man shall be compelled to attend, erect, or support any place of worship, or to maintain any ministry against his consent; no human authority ought, in any case whatever, to control or interfere with the rights of conscience, in matters of religion, and no preference shall ever be given by law, to any religious societies or mode of worship; but it shall be the duty of the Legislature to pass such laws as may be necessary, to protect every religious denomination in the peaceable enjoyment of their own mode of public worship.

SEC. 5. Every citizen shall be at liberty to speak, write or publish his opinions on any subject, being responsible for the abuse of that privilege; and no law shall ever be passed, curtailing the liberty of speech or of the press.

SEC. 6. In prosecutions for the publication of papers investigating the official conduct of officers, or men in a public capacity, or when the matter published is proper for public information, the truth thereof may be given in evidence; and, in all indictments for libels, the jury shall have the right to determine the law and the facts, under the direction of the Court, as in other cases.

SEC. 7. The people shall be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and possessions, from unreasonable seizures or searches; and no warrant to search any place, or to seize any person or thing, shall issue, without describing them as near as may be; nor without probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation.

SEC. 8. In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall have a speedy public trial, by an impartial jury; he shall not be compelled to give evidence against himself; he shall have the right of being heard by himself or counsel, or both; shall be confronted with the witnesses against him, and shall have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor; and no person shall be held to answer for any criminal charge, but on indictment or information, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or offences against the laws regulating the militia.

SEC. 9. All prisoners shall be bailable by sufficient sureties, unless for capital offences, when the proof is evident, or the presumption great; but this provision shall not be so construed as to prohibit bail after indictment found, upon an examination of the evidence by a Judge of the Supreme or District Court, upon the return of a writ of habeas corpus, returnable in the county where the offence is committed.

Sec. 10. The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended, except when, in case of rebellion or invasion, the public safety may require it.

Sec. 11. Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishment inflicted. All courts shall be open; and every person, for an injury done him in his lands, goods, person, or reputation, shall have remedy by due course of law.

Sec. 12. No person, for the same offence, shall be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall a person be again put upon trial for the same offence, after a verdict of not guilty: and the right of trial by jury shall remain inviolate.

Sec. 13. Every citizen shall have the right to keep and bear arms in the lawful defence of himself or the State.

Sec. 14. No bill of attainder, ex post facto law, retroactive law, or any law impairing the obligation of contracts, shall be made; and no person's property shall be taken, or applied to public use, without adequate compensation being made, unless by the consent of such person.

Sec. 15. No person shall ever be imprisoned for debt.

Sec. 16. No citizen of this State shall be deprived of life, liberty, property, or privileges, outlawed, exiled, or in any manner disfranchised, except by due course of the law of the land.

Sec. 17. The military shall, at all times, be subordinate to the civil authority.

Sec. 18. Perpetuities and monopolies are contrary to the genius of a free government, and shall never be allowed; nor shall the law of primogeniture or entailments ever be in force in this State.

Sec. 19. The citizens shall have the right, in a peaceable manner, to assemble together for their common good; and to apply to those invested with the powers of Government, for redress of grievances, or other purposes, by petition, address, or remonstrance.

Sec. 20. No power of suspending laws in this State shall be exercised, except by the Legislature or its authority.

Sec. 21. To guard against transgressions of the high powers herein delegated, we declare that every thing in this "Bill of Rights" is excepted out of the general powers of government, and shall forever remain inviolate; and all laws contrary thereto, or to the following provisions, shall be void.
ARTICLE SECOND.

DIVISION OF THE POWERS OF GOVERNMENT.

SECTION 1. The powers of the Government of the State of Texas, shall be divided into three distinct departments, and each of them be confided to a separate body of magistracy, to wit:—those which are Legislative, to one; those which are Executive, to another; and those which are Judicial, to another; and no person, or collection of persons, being of one of those departments, shall exercise any power properly attached to either of the others, except in the instances herein expressly permitted.

Bills may originate in either House, and be amended, altered, or rejected by the other; but no bill shall have the force of a law, until, on three several days it be read in each House, and free discussion be allowed thereon, unless in case of great emergency, four-fifths of the House in which the bill shall be pending, may deem it expedient to dispense with this rule: and every bill having passed both Houses, shall be signed by the Speaker and President of their respective Houses.

Sec. 21. All bills for raising revenue, shall originate in the House of Representatives, but the Senate may amend or reject them as other bills.

"JOINT RESOLUTION FOR ANNEXING TEXAS TO THE UNITED STATES.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, That Congress doth consent that the territory properly included within, and rightfully belonging to, the Republic of Texas, may be erected into a new State, to be called the State of Texas, with a republican form of government, to be adopted by the people of said Republic, by deputies in convention assembled, with the consent of the existing government, in order that the same may be admitted as one of the States of this Union.

"2. And be it further resolved, That the foregoing consent of Congress is given upon the following conditions, and with the following guarantees, to wit: First—Said State to be formed, subject to the adjustment by this government, of all questions of boundary that may arise with other governments; and the Constitution thereof, with the proper evidence of its adoption by the people of said Republic of Texas, shall be transmitted to the President of the United States, to be laid before Congress for its final action, on or before the first day of January, 1846. Second—Said State, when admitted into the Union, after ceding to the United States all public edifices, fortifications, barracks, ports and harbors, navy and navy yards, docks, magazines, arms and armaments, and all other property and means pertaining to the public defence belonging to the said Republic of Texas, shall retain all the public funds, debts, taxes and dues of every kind which may belong to, or be due and owing to the said Republic; and shall also retain, all the vacant and unappropriated lands lying within its limits, to be applied to the payment of the debts and liabilities of said Republic of Texas, and the residue of said lands, after discharging said debts and liabilities, to be disposed of as said State may direct; but in no event are said debts and liabilities to become a charge upon the government of the United States. Third—New States of convenient size, not exceeding four in number, in addition to said State of Texas, and having sufficient population, may hereafter, by the consent of said State, be formed out of the territory thereof, which shall be entitled to admission under the provisions of the Federal Constitution; and such states as may be formed out of that portion of said territory lying south of thirty-six degrees thirty minutes north latitude, commonly known as the Missouri Compromise Line, shall be admitted into the Union, with or without slavery, as the people of each State, asking admission, may desire; and in such State or States as shall be formed out of said territory, north of said
Missouri Compromise Line, slavery, or involuntary servitude (except for crime) shall be prohibited."

Now, in order to manifest the assent of the people of this Republic, as required in the above recited portions of the said resolutions, we, the deputies of the people of Texas in convention assembled, in their name, and by their authority, do ordain and declare, that we assent to, and accept, the proposals, conditions and guarantees contained in the first and second sections of the resolution of the Congress of the United States aforesaid.

Done in Convention at the City of Austin, Republic of Texas,

On motion of Mr. Mayfield, the Secretary of the Convention was required to transmit a copy of the Constitution to the President of the Republic of Texas, and one copy to the President of the United States.

The President of the Convention arose, and delivered the following address:

GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION:—

Before putting the motion of final adjournment, allow me to return you my most sincere thanks and acknowledgments, for the honor conferred upon me by the passage of the resolution, yesterday: coming, as it does, from such a body, I shall cherish it, gentlemen, as long as life shall last with me; and transmit it to my children as a bright inheritance, which the poor services of their father little merited. Our labors have now drawn to a close. The important duties we were called upon to discharge, on the part of the people of Texas, are discharged, and, I trust, in a manner which will be satisfactory, to all the people of Texas—satisfactory to the Congress and people of the United States, and satisfactory to the friends of republican government throughout the civilized world. We are about, after a short session, considering the immense labor performed, to adjourn. We are about, again to go and mingle among our constituents, many of us never again to take part in political strifes, or to be engaged in political action. The proceedings of this Convention, I think I may safely say, without vanity or any undue prejudice in favor of Texas, our adopted land, may well compare with those of any similar body which has met within the last hundred years. They have been marked by a degree of decorum, and a spirit of good feeling which, I trust in God, will continue to characterize the people of Texas, as long as our country shall endure. In the ardor of debate, from the difference of opinion which may have existed with regard to some principle adopted in this Constitution, for a moment the feelings of gentlemen may have been slightly excited. I am glad to see that all this has passed away; I am glad to see that the spirit of harmony and good feeling, and the emotions of patriotism, which were manifested upon the first day of our meeting, have continued to preside over our deliberations, until this the day of our adjournment; and I trust they will continue to exist in our bosoms, and that, whether separated or together, we shall ever entertain towards each other, those kind feelings which have been manifested here. I trust that each member will carry them home to his constituents, and do all in his power to make this Constitution as acceptable as possible to the people, in order that it may appear to the Government of the United States, that we go into the Union in the proper manner, and that the vile slanders hurled against us by our enemies, that we are a band of disorganizers, is false and foul.

I trust, too, that when this Constitution shall go into operation, the angry passions attendant upon political dissentions, will be hushed; that all sectional feelings and jealousies, and the strifes of personal ambition, will cease; and that for many long years to come, it will continue the organic law of a people united as a band of brothers, animated by the best feelings of the human heart, and prompted in action by that pure and lively patriotism which has characterized Texas thus far.

In my retirement, I carry with me the best feelings for each one of you, and the warmest desires for your success, and the success of Texas.

On motion of Mr. Latimer of R. R., the Convention adjourned sine die.
